Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a reliable and honest medicine, and that the statements made in our advertisements regarding its merit are the truth and nothing but the truth.

MR. ROCKEFELLER'S BENEFAC-TION

If I am not too late, I desire to register, through your columns, my vigorous protest, as a loyal citizen of the splendid new south, against the most recent attempt of Bishop W. A. Candler to fan into flame the rapidly dying embers of sectional and partisan hatred, as published in the Journal of last Monday.

And, at the same time, I wish to commend most highly the thoughtful reply which emanated from a member of this spiritually belated bishop's own denominational household as published in Tuesday's Journal, and to thank this brother for so courageously braving the penalties of "lese majesty" and voicing the sentiments of a multitude of southerners, who it is safe to assume, hold as dear to their hearts the good name and the continued prosperity of Dixie as does this dignity of the great Methodist church.

I have been a somewhat frequent reader of the bishop's contributions to the public press and regret to be obliged to testify that this is not his first offense in this particular direction. Nor is his violation of sectional ethics and social good manners to be considered in this instance because he has chosen to employ the narrow, bigoted, prejudiced, "picayunish" editorial which he quotes from the New Orleans Picayune, as the medium of his unreasonable and un-Christian censure of the motives and intentions of a man who evidently desires to be of service to humanity, for whoever indorses the evil word or deed of another becomes himself a partaker of the unhappy fruit thereof.

As I have from time to time been surprised and saddened by these puerile, petulant, pessimistic outbursts of this unconstructed ecclesiastic, I have felt that it is high time that the great church whose splendid spirit of fraternity and progress he so grievously misrepresents should unitedly insist that he begin a course of suggestive therapeutics which would induce him to exchange Jeremiah for the second Isaiah as the prophet of his inspiration or, better still, to sit at the feet of the Nazarene and catch his spirit of love, forgiveness, reconciliation, faith and optimism. For it is to be greatly deplored that the high official position of this writer lends to his utterances a sense of weight and authority, in many minds, out of all proportion to their wisdom and logic, thus constituting them a reactionary force of sufficient gravity to warrant the serious attention of all who are anxious that our glorious southland shall live up to her happy reputation of hospitality, fraternity and progress.

The war is over, and only the echoes of its horrors remain to warn us of the utter futility of such barbarous and medieval methods for the settlement of disputes which must always ultimately come to the arbitration of dispassionate deliberation and sane judgment. The God of battles has decreed that we shall be, henceforth, one nation, not two jealous and warring peoples. Any disability or shortcoming which handicaps any particular section of our extended domain becomes, therefore, a national affair, and an occasion for national solicitation. "We are members, one of another," and certainly one member may not suffer without all the family being involved in the disaster.

It is not fair, it is not charitable, it is not sensible for the bishop to continually impugn the motives of various citizens of our united country whose patriotism and humanity impel them toward efforts to equalize the blessings of health, education and happiness among all of the children of the nation which our fathers planted along the shores of the Atlantic, from the palmettoes of Florida to the pines of Maine, and I feel that I am not overstepping the bounds of propriety and courtesy in herewith registering my protest and my rebuke. And, despite the disparity in our ages, I shall even make so bold as to remind the good bishop of the solemn warnings of all history concerning the absolute certainty and implacability of that nemesis which ever waits those who attempt to clog the wheels of the onward surge of that civilization which irresistibly moves toward the consummation of a universal brotherhood. Wake up, brother, wake up! Clasp the hands extended to you in disinterested fraternity. Join the glad company of those bosannas of the innumerable company of the prophets of better things. But, if this is not possible, if indeed your disease has reached the incurable stage, then in mercy at least spare us the depressing effect of the pessimistic wallings of the winter of your discontent as you wrap the mantle of sectional satisfaction about you and sit on the ash heap of your unconscious spiritual desolation and watch the world go by!—Everett Dean Ellenwood, in Atlanta Journal.

Wanted—A fair, tolerant, honest republican. It is a variety that is fast vanishing from public life.

THE BUICK CAR WINS IN ATLANTA

Quite a number of Ocala people witnessed the great auto races in Atlanta, among them being Messrs. J. H. Spencer and Louis Lang of the Ocala Gas Engine Works, and it was a source of consolation to them to know that the Buick car broke all previous records, as they are agents here for it.

Speaking of the races, the Atlanta Journal says:

Lewis Chevrolet, driving a 30-horse-horsepower, won the two hundred mile race, averaging 72 miles an hour. Dingley was second and Larimer third, both in Chalmers-Detroit. Chevrolet's time for the 200 miles was 2:46:48.

By his marvelous drive Chevrolet lowered the world's record for 200 miles by 27 minutes and 25 seconds. At the finish of the race the victors were cheered by the crowds, and all the officials and drivers of racing cars gathered about his machine to overwhelm him with congratulations. The former world's record was also held by a Buick car, which was driven by Burman at Indianapolis, his time being 3 hours, 24 minutes and 13 4-10 seconds.

Easily the feature event of the day was the 200-mile contest for the $5000 coca-cola trophy. This was a race for stock chassis, 301 to 450 cubic inches, with coca-cola trophy as first prize, together with $600 in gold. The second prize was $300 in gold, and the third $150 in gold.

The coca-cola trophy must be won three times to become the property of the entrant. There were nine entries in this race and all the cars entered lined up at the wire when the call to the post was sounded.

KILLS HER FOE OF 20 YEARS

"The most merciless enemy I had for 20 years," declares Mrs. James Duncan of Haysville, Mo., "was dyspepsia. I suffered intensely after eating or drinking, and could scarcely sleep. After many remedies had failed and several doctors gave me up, I tried Electric Bitters, which cured me completely. Now I can eat anything. I am 70 years old, and am overjoyed to get my health and strength back again." For indigestion, loss of appetite, kidney trouble, lame back, female complaints, it's unequalled. Only 50c. at Tidyings & Co.

STRANGE FASHIONS FOR MEN

Soft hats in all colors of the rainbow show how styles run for men this season. And the man, according to his color or ailment, can select the hat to suit him. He with the yellow jaundice will prefer the yellowish tinge, while his bilious friend will grab the green variety. The man with the decidedly high color will select the royal blue.

Rich red and brown ties are the favorites. Pure white serge evening suits have made a hit, and many men of society are now wearing them during the winter as well as in the summer. Mark Twain claims the fatherhood of the white serge dress suit. Caruso, the tenor, is now wearing clothes of a royal purple broadcloth, cut upon the conventional lines, with a silk braid stripe down the trouser leg. The coat is cut a trifle smaller in the front to display the startling waistcoat of old-fashioned brocade in flower patterns.

Another style of evening clothes has been started in society, being suggestive of the Victorian period. The cravats selected for this style are of the butterfly variety. The seal or eye-glass, hung on a ribbon is another familiar thing in men's dress.

Hosiery and cravats must match, and these are often in very loud colors, from violet to deep purple blue, green and crimson. The tie is of solid color, any shade. The new materials for waistcoats are gorgeous to the extreme. Jewelry now matches the prevailing tone in neckwear, hosiery, shirt or suit.

AFTER THE STORM

Los Kiss, Nov. 8, 1909.

To the Editor Ocala Banner:
Los Kiss is still on the map. The famous J. U. G. Club steamer, Lenore, is in English ports, cruising just for fun. The steamer Silvertown is now in gulf waters and is as busy as a bee. The J. U. G. Club will appoint Miss Trice as the Burbank member. Specials soon. J. U. G.

Mr. Henry Watterson writes a long letter from Paris to the Courier-Journal. Like all his letters, it is intensely interesting. We quote but a single extract:

"I met Senator Aldrich in Paris the other day. You wouldn't have taken us for long-lost brothers. I see by the newspapers that he and I are going to get up a national bank which shall issue a stable currency and have no politics; he to be the president and I the cashier! 'Ante up, brother, ante up,' shouted Simon Sticks at the camp meeting. 'I come in on nary par, and see what I drewed. In religion everybody holds four aces! Like-wise in politics, where you play both ends against the middle.'"

A FINE CARTOON

Last Friday's issue of the Baltimore Star contains a splendid cartoon, in which the name of Tampa is featured effectively. Lord Baltimore is shown on a dock piled high with freight, marked from Tampa, Jacksonville, New Orleans, Mobile, Savannah, Key West, Charleston, Havana and Panama. The natural presumption is that a direct line of steamers from Baltimore to Tampa is regarded as a certainty.

The purpose of the cartoon, however, is to bring out the fact that Baltimore is building up a tremendous shipping business by providing ample facilities for it. Lord Baltimore, the central figure in the interesting picture, is made to say, "The way to get trade is to get it, and I am building the best system of docks in America." Therein is an eloquent presentation of a fact which should engage the serious attention of Tampa immediately. The Times has always contended that an increase in our dock facilities is as necessary as an increase in the depth of water, and the situation on our water front today amply sustains this contention. Tampa should pattern after Baltimore in this case.—Tampa Times.

The Citrus County Way

The traveling representative of the Times, who was in Inverness Saturday, reports that Citrus county has purchased and received a road-building machine which is driven by gasoline motor power. Citrus county is embarking on road building on an extensive scale and employing the most approved and intelligent methods. Splendid material for the construction of macadam roads is found in Citrus county in abundance—a flint rock which does not powder nor become soft when wet. This will be found by far the best investment the people of Citrus county have ever made.—Tampa Times.
